Leopold, according to Del'goda's story, lost his courage and turned sick at the sight of the blood of the

After telling of the poison plot, plans for which he said had been completed, Delgoda said:

"I am what the police call a hard boiled egg. But I draw the line at wholesale poisoning. The chances are that every criminal walking the streets of Chicago will feel called upon to avenge my violation of the ex-

OLD MASTERS

If the red slayer think he slays,
Or if the slain think he is slain,
They know not well the subtle ways
I keep, and pass, and turn again.

Far or forget to me is near;
Shadow and sunlight are the same;
The vanished gods to me appear;
And one to me are shame and fame.

They reckon ill who leave me out;
When me they fly, I am the wings;
I am the doubter and the doubt,
And I the hymn of Brahmin sings.

The strong gods pine for my abode,
And pine in vain the sacred Seven;
But thou, meek lover of the good!
Find me, and turn thy back on heav-

Silver Wedding Celebrated Sunday

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Wallace, residing on the Hazelwood road opposite the Colony, celebrated their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary, Saturday, Mar. 12. The house was tastefully decorated throughout, the color scheme being grey and silver.

Over 80 of their friends from Dixon, Nachusa and Elders communities attended and helped them celebrate the occasion. From this large and happy gathering excellent entertainment was volunteered and a very lengthy program pleased the guests, and from the generous expressions of applause given, all were pleased, as all of the parts were fitting for the occasion. The program was:

Solos—Dorothy Helmick, accompanied by Josephine Trotter.
Recitations—Phyllis Jean Gray.
Readings—Mrs. L. N. Deutsch.
Musical Trio—Hazel, Jean and Ivan Wallace.

Readings—Mrs. Martha Shippert.
Songs—Lee Wallace.
Recitations—Harry Beam.

After the program, dancing was enjoyed by some while others were entertained at bridge and five hundred.

At midnight all were seated and Levi Martin in a few well chosen words presented Mr. and Mrs. Wallace with several individual silver gifts and a community gift of silver candle sticks and candles and a silver lined bowl and remarked that these were emblematic of the light to light their way and the bowl to store up the fruits of life on their continued journey.

All of the guests present then registered their names in a book provided for that purpose.

A most tempting cafeteria lunch was served the guests, Mrs. Wallace cutting a very large wedding anniversary cake and each guest was presented with a generous portion.

At a late hour the guests departed wishing Mr. and Mrs. Wallace every success on their pathway through life.

Mrs. Frank O'Connor, Chicago; Mrs. Alfred Johnson, Clarinda, Iowa; Mrs. Nettie Wallace, A. L. Tedwall, sisters and brother; and Grandda Tedwall, Mrs. Wallace's father, were the honored guests.

Mrs. O'Connor will be remembered as Rose Tedwall and as her birthday was on this day, all were glad to help celebrate the double event.

Women's Class at "Y", Pleasant Meeting

The members of the Women's class at the Y, Mrs. Yohn, director, came out in full number last evening for class work and social.

The work is going along fine and each time a few more accomplish the jump over "the buck." Those who were eliminated from jumping busied themselves preparing refreshments.

Games were enjoyed and such as Dodge Balls created much fun and quick work for the dodgers.

Some told stories, some gave character, and another group dramatized stories. This form of recreation is the best there is as the persons are lost in what they are doing. A continual story, which lengthened as each one added a part, brought forth great laughter.

Cake and coffee were served and some dainty favors introduced the spirit of St. Patrick's Day.

The class appreciated work done by the serving committee and a new committee offered itself for another party which will be held in the near future.

Menus for the Family

BREAKFAST—Baked apples, cereal, thin cream, crisp broiled bacon, French toast, new maple syrup, milk, coffee.

LUNCHEON—Beef broth with noodles, salsify salad, health bread, sponge cake, canned pears, milk, tea.

DINNER—Braised veal steak, boiled rice, scalloped tomatoes, salad of pineapple, oranges and dates, chocolate pudding, graham bread, milk, coffee.

Salsify is one of the root vegetables that improves if left in the ground during the winter months. The freezing sweetens the flavor and refines the texture of the vegetable.

Four roots of salsify, 3-4 cup diced celery, 2 pimientos, 1-4 cup English walnut meats, French dressing, lettuce.

Scrub salsify and cook in boiling salted water until tender. Plunge into cold water and rub off skin. Cut in neat dice and drop in lemon juice. Drain from lemon juice and combine with celery. Pour over French dressing, cover and let stand in a cold place for 30 minutes. Arrange on a bed of lettuce and sprinkle with nuts. Garnish with strips of pimiento and serve very cold.

If all the little girls won't go back to the gingham gown, they (male manufacturers) will get the gingham idea in somehow. They're making gingham patterned kid shoes—$18.50 a pair. One way of getting the girls back to the simple life, and you can buy calico-patterned silk print dresses for so low as $9.50. And what would grandma have said, and who cares?

EVENING PAJAMAS

Speaking of clothes, what do you think of some actress's idea that you wear pajama suits morning, afternoon and evening? She has even designed some stunning ones of metallic stuffs for evening, crepe ones for the tea table, and those of linen and pongee for sports wear. Worth, the great designer, prophesied that by 1950, trouser suits will be worn by all women everywhere. And why not? Fancier things than that happened to women the 25 years preceding today.

GREAT BOOK

If you don't read many books—"but when I do, I want it to really count," as so many of you write me,—pick up Leah Morton's "I am a Woman and a Jew." It is one of the most stimulating woman biographies written since Rheta Dor's "Woman of Fifty." Although many critics and lecturers have discussed the book as "a problem book," the problem of a Jewess married to a Gentile, it is to me just the story of a simple-to-day's woman, alert, intelligent, capable, endeavoring to live a life abundant without undue clashes between intellectual activity and the mechanism of her home.

CURLS AND BOBS

"I can't quite decide whether the curls make her look younger or older," is one choice line from the delicious Bette comedy, "What Every Woman Knows," recently revived with Helen Hayes doing an exquisite job as darling Maggie. One feels like saying "Thank you, Jimmie Barrie, for that line." It will come in so handy when next I see an aged female with a girlish bob. I shall say to my inner soul, "Lady, you've reached the age when one can't quite decide whether the cutle bob makes you look older or younger." Knowing quite well that it makes her look older. But she's probably comfortable.

GOOD SHOT

"Most men, of course, demand far too much of their wives. They expect them to be good mothers, clever housewives, and sparkling comrades, and there is not one woman in a thousand who can be all three. If a man finds that his wife possesses one of these qualities, he should go down on his knees and thank God." So writes a Britisher in his native weekly.

PEOPLE HITCHED TO JOBS ARE GENERALLY HAPPIEST

By Olive Roberts Barton

"Hum ho! It's a workaday world." So say we all of us gloomily.

We get up in the morning and get at the same old job and think we're killed. Everybody has some sort of a job. Sometimes the job doesn't know where we are, and sometimes we don't know where the job is, but there are never quite enough people in the world to do all the work there is to do. The trouble is that frequently work and people do not hitch up.

People who are hitched to a job are the happiest people on earth. There may be the job of measuring starry with a fly's wing, or it may be sterilizing milk bottles for the baby. But unless one has the anchor of work, he is likely to find himself like Captain Jack.

MAYBE THERE'S TIME ENOUGH.

This world, unfortunately, is far from perfect, and there is ample reason for pessimism among the serious thinkers in the corner drug store; but there are, here and there, rays of hope.

The latest ray is emitted by Major William Bowie, government scientist, who announces that our old earth has at least 300,000,000 years of life remaining to it.

This planet, it seems, is slowly cooling off, and ultimately will be too cold to support any kinds of life. But Major Bowie insists that it will be three million centuries before this cooling process reaches a point where it will be uncomfortably manifest.

Heartening words, these. Perhaps there is time, after all, for mankind to install some of the internal improvements he has been talking about for so many centuries.

There is this business of war, for instance. Perhaps the time allotted us by Major Bowie is none too ample; but there is reason to hope that before it has all elapsed men will have come to their senses and found some way of settling their disputes with one another without resorting to force.

Then there is crime. Even the most cynical must admit that three million centuries ought to be enough for us to make a real, scientific study of this social phenomenon and find a better way of treating it than our present prisons and electric chairs afford.

And, some time before the end of this long stretch of years, it is just barely possible that capital and labor may find some way of getting along.

Of course, those are the lesser problems. The really important issues will need every minute that Major Bowie gives us, if not more.

Consider, for example, the revolution in human affairs that would be necessitated even by so small a thing as our trying to regulate our daily lives by the Sermon on the Mount; think what the words Brotherhood, Tolerance, Democracy, Freedom and Justice really mean, and you'll agree that the time will be none too long.

A whole lot of things can happen in 300,000,000 years. It is rather odd to think that there will come a day when not one soul on earth will know that there once existed great "world powers" named England, France and America. It tickles the risibilities to think that some day the names of Shakespeare and Napoleon and Washington and Caesar will mean no more than they would have meant to old King Tut-ankh-amen. But it's true. We, and all that we build or do or say, will vanish utterly from the earth.

Well, perhaps that isn't strictly true. For we are the spiritual ancestors of those million-generations-removed descendants of ours; and every step that we take forward will help them a little bit.

That's why we can have hope. That's why we can be so optimistic as to believe that somehow 300,000,000 years can produce a civilization that will fulfill all of our golden dreams.

FREEDOM FOR THE LADIES.

Mme. Lenine says Russia is the only country in the world where women really are emancipated. Maybe the men open the cans for them over there. . . . Doesn't she realize that every woman in America today has her own Diet? . . . An eastern writer says some of the finest dishes used to be cooked in paper bags. Now they're carried home in paper bags and ready to eat when the bag's opened. . . . An Indiana man is suing for divorce because his wife cooked only one meal for him in their two weeks of married life. Maybe he's better off than he thinks. . . . Two Chicago women plead that the drudgery of housekeeping be abolished. There's a fortune in it for the man who invents a can opener that runs by motor.

Today's headline that you'll never see: "Pastors Pass Plate For Fund To Buy Sinclair Lewis Gold Watch."

Two girls introduced as "business girls" to John D. Rockefeller were presented with shimmering dimes. They're good business girls.

A New York judge decided that two drinks do not make every man drunk. The coroner can tell you about some of the others.

Men are better than women at the question-answer game that is so popular these days, says a Chicago professor. But just ask some father what to do when the baby swallows a button.

While the White House is being fixed up, it wouldn't be a bad idea to send in some experts to revise the White House dictionary, which seems to give the pronunciation of hostile as "hostyle."

Il Duce has demonstrated that almost any system of government will work if the people will.

Sounds paradoxical, but no woman can hold her own in a battle of tongues.

Modern girls give little thought to clothes. They've learned not to worry over trifles.

THE TINYMITES

STORY BY HAL COCHRAN—PICTURES BY KNICK

The Tynmites stood by Mary's side and Scouty said, "You be the guide and tell us just what we should do. We'll gladly help you work." "All right," said Mary, "on your knees and pick the carrots and the peas." They all sat down and Clowzy was the only one to shirk.

"Was fun to pull the carrots out and watch the dirt sail all about. Soon Clowzy grabbed a hold of one and pulled to eat the band. It held for just a while and then poor Clowzy took a spill again. To see him fall the others laughed until they couldn't stand."

"The pea plants grew in long, long lines and dropped from heavy laden vines. Fair Mary said, 'Be careful now and don't pull out the plants. Just take the pods and snap them free, and bring them over here to me.' The way she gave out orders made the band of Tynmites dance. They then picked lettuce and some corn and worked until they all were worn. The vegetables were piled up high and really looked real good. Said Scouty, 'Would it be all right if I should take a little bit of some big rosy radish?' Mary laughed, and said he could."

They found a cozy place to sit, and sat right down and ate a bit. Then Mary said, "We'll have to take these things down to the store." She wheeled an old wheelbarrow out. The Tynmites dashed around about and loaded it up to the top. It couldn't hold much more.

And then they started on their trip. Each Tynmy took a real strong grip and helped to push on down the road until they came to town. Up to a store the cart was rolled, and soon the vegetables were sold. Then Mary tried to pay them, but the Tynmites turned it down.

(The Tynmites meet Tom, Tom the Piper's Son in the next story.)

SAINT and SINNER

Faith and Bob and Jim Lane were five minutes late for the opening of the afternoon session of court. Examination of a taleman was going forward when they took their seats.

"He'll do," Faith heard Cherry murmur to Churchill. "He looks like Dad. And he says he has a daughter just my age. He'll always be thinking—'What if it was my girl?' Did you bring me a paper, darling?" she asked of Faith, her golden eyes as wide and eager as a child's.

"Please look as if you cared about Chris being ill," Faith begged in a whisper. "The reporters are all watching you. And they're criticizing you in their stories, jumping to conclusions which are going to hurt you."

Cherry's small, coral mouth set stubbornly, and she shook her head slightly. But Faith was relieved to see that almost instantly the expensive face changed, registered concern. Cherry even managed a couple of great, round, glistening tears, which slipped down her cheeks—as white and fine and smooth as petals of a gardenia. The lovely little mouth trembled convincingly.

"I'm thinking of Mugsy," she whispered brokenly to Faith. "That's the only thing that can make me cry. List, darling. Sen Chris a pot of lilies with my name on the card. Think of it, Faith—lilies for Chris! I hope he will realize how ironic that is! And I'll write a note to go with them. And I'm sure to tell the reporters that I'm doing it."

The business of impeding a jury went tediously on. With almost comical ferocity Tom Banning, the district attorney, fought for the acceptance of old men of approximately Ralph Cluny's age, old men who were widowers or bachelors and who would naturally visualize themselves in the predicament of the dead man—murdered for their money by scheming gold-diggers. Just as persistently, though far more suavely, Stephen Churchill fought to exclude such talemen and strove to fill the jury box with middle-aged, married men, fathers of sons and daughters of somewhere near Cherry's and Chris' age.

At four o'clock the panel had been exhausted and the judge had ordered the clerk to draw in open court and the sheriff to summon 150 jurors, to appear in court the next morning—Tuesday, January 4—at ten o'clock. Judge Grimshaw then charged the jury, who had been tentatively accepted not to discuss the case or to form a conclusion and ordered court adjourned.

Swallowing her distaste for the ordeal, Faith lingered in the courtroom near the press tables after she had kissed Cherry goodbye. With apparent reluctance, she submitted to being interviewed, answering questions as they were peppered upon her by the more than thirty representatives of the press.

"Is it true that your sister, Cherry, is going to divorce her husband," a girl reporter asked bluntly.

"Of course not!" Faith cried with well-assumed indignation. "She is very much grieved over his illness, and has commissioned me to send him flowers in her name and to give him, when I call on him at the hospital this afternoon, a letter she wrote in court today."

"Would you let us print the letter?" a young man asked brusquely. "Might do a lot to check these rumors that are going the rounds that she and Chris are on the outs."

"I don't think she would like that," Faith stammered. Then, after a bit more persuasion, she handed over the fervid love note which Cherry had scribbled on a sheet torn from her lawyer's memo pad. She did not explain that the note would never be delivered, that if Chris Wiley read it at all, he would read it in the columns of the newspapers.

Her cheeks were still burning with shame when she entered the hospital and asked to see Christopher Wiley, her sister's husband of a night.

FISH-WIVES? OH, NO!

London.—From time immemorial women who work with fish have been called fish-wives in England, a name reflecting their general unattractiveness and lack of refinement. But this year all the women appeared in modish short skirts, silk stockings and bobbed hair. Now they will be called "fish-fairies."

Confessions of Washington Wives

Being Intimate Stories of the Woman's Side of Official Life in the Capital

BY ALLENE SUMNER
CHAPTER VIII

Washington—Ten times a year the president of the United States is dined by members of his cabinet.

Thus saveth the social law of the land. Thus it is and ever has been. Each cabinet secretary and lady must "slaughter the fatted calf" for the Highest of the Land.

And the calf must be slaughtered not when they please, but when the date is given them by the White House.

Precedent is duly observed, of course, in the order in which the cabinet entertains the president and the First Lady. The dinners begin with the secretary of state, of course, and end with the secretary of labor.

Those Onion Sandwiches
Once upon a time the cabinet hosts had to invite all the rest of the cabinet, too, which meant that the president ate his caviar and terrapin with the same group ten times a year.

But if worms can turn, so can presidents. It was too much of a good thing and today the cabinet host generally does not invite his colleagues of the cabinet.

Story has it that once upon a time, and not so many presidents ago, a cabinet secretary whose rank demanded that he sit at the president's right discovered that the president liked onion sandwiches. So, with his conversational topic discovered, he regaled the presidential ear ten times a year at the ten cabinet dinners with a monolog on how he liked onions, too.

And Red Flannels
And someone else discovered that a president once wore red flannel trousers and so did he, and they talked about that.

And finally things came to such a pass that the president and his lady refused point blank, whether the State Department veiled or nayed it, to eat ten times a year with the same people and the same conversational subjects.

So the new order came.
The ten cabinet families still slaughter the fatted calf for the president, but they invite their own guests and not the rest of the cabinet.

And the guests come from the farthest corners of the nation for just this one night, so that they can tell posterity of "the night we dined with the president, and he said—"

It's an ordeal
Not all cabinet families are rolling in wealth. Not all cabinet wives are any more accustomed to dining presidents than the average small-town woman.

It's an ordeal in many cases, something to get up and trust to the Lord that no terrible "breaks" will be made.

"The main worry is that the guests from out of town who don't know Washington rules will do the correct thing," one cabinet wife told me.

The guests must be in the home or hotel private dining room before the president and Mrs. Coolidge. They must be standing, of course.

But I had one guest who was so awed when the president came through the door that she forgot to stand up," one harassed cabinet wife told me.

Special Maid and Butler
A hired for the evening maid stands in the hallway to take Mrs. Coolidge's wraps, and another "hired for the evening" butler relieves the president of his high hat.

A Washington caterer keeps on his staff one handsome butler whose one and only duty is to take the president's coat and hat at private home dinners.

When one reads the society papers and sees the item "The President and Mrs. Coolidge were entertained at dinner last night by Secretary and Mrs. Blank," one visions a setting of opulent splendor.

As a matter of fact, more than one cabinet family in Washington lives within its income, saves, and lives no more splendidly than any middle-class small-town family.

Wilbur's Don't Splurge
And the necessary entertaining of the president and Mrs. Coolidge means as much planning and scurrying about for the linen, crystal and silver as it would on your Main street.

Secretary Wilbur of the navy and his wife, for instance, make no attempt to conceal the fact that they are just average middle-class citizens who live simply.

Mrs. Wilbur makes no bones of the tablecloths and silver and crystal that she borrows when it is her turn to entertain the Coolidges.

"The Wilburs live in a house plenty large enough for the two of them, but rather small for cabinet receptions and official entertaining."

Made the Pudding
Mrs. Wilbur tells herself of the time that stretched around the block twice and in two on their first New Year's in Washington, as those on the outside waited for the few in the inside to get out.

And she makes no pretense about the job it is to entertain the president of the United States.

PEOPLE'S COLUMN

GALILEO THE ASTRONOMER.

Born in Pisa, Italy, in the year 1564, the year Calvin and Michael Angelo died, four years after the birth of Bacon, about the time the Huguenot persecution was at its height, and the Spanish Monarchy was in its most prosperous state. His parents were noble, but not rich. The boy gave some promise of rare ability. His father determined he should be a Doctor of Medicine, but the boy took to Mathematics, and became the renowned Astronomer.

In the 16th century arose great Artists, Poets, Philosophers, Theologians, Reformers, Navigators, Jurists and Statesmen, whose genius has scarcely since been surpassed. In Italy it was marked by the triumph of scholars and artists, in Germany and France by Reformers and Warriors, in England by that splendid constellation that shed glory on the reign of Elizabeth.

Then rose up the reformers, headed by Luther, consigning to destruction the emblems and ceremonies of Medieval superstition, defying Popes, turning bulls, ridiculing monks, exposing frauds, unscrupulous sophistries, attacking vices and traditions with the new arms of reason, and asserting the right of private judgment, and the supreme authority of the Bible in all matters of religious faith.

Protestantism was established in half of the countries that had for more than a thousand years bowed

"I started planning two months ahead," she told a friend. "And I made the pudding myself—orange in sections and covered with a custard sauce. The president seemed to like it very much."

Last year a friend of the Wilbur family begged for the honor of taking complete charge of the table—its linen, silver, decorations, place cards. She placed an old antique candelabra in the center of the table. Mrs. Coolidge, an admirer of antiques, commented on "your beautiful old heirloom," to her host, Mr. Wilbur.

The Secretary Was Clever, Too
"I didn't know what awful thing he would say," confided Mrs. Wilbur, "but he was cute. He just said, 'we pecked up and left California in such a hurry that I don't know what is old and what is new.'"

"And you should have seen that kitchen after the dinner," summarized this cabinet hostess. "Dishes piled ten deep. You just can't feed 14 people and the president out of a small kitchen and keep out of a mess."

(By the way, did you ever know how the president felt on the subject of short skirts? Well, we'll have that one and some other Coolidge's next.)

down to the authority of the Popes. Genius stimulates, and enterprise multiplies, all the energies and aims of emancipated millions. Before the close of the 16th century new continents were colonized, new modes of warfare were introduced, manuscripts are changed into printed books, governments were more firmly established and learned men were enriched and honored. Feudalism has succumbed around their sovereign at court rather than compose an independent authority.

Before that century had been numbered with the ages past, the Portuguese had sailed to the East Indies, Sir Francis Drake had circumnavigated the globe, Pizarro had conquered Peru, Sir Walter Raleigh had colonized Virginia, Ricci had penetrated to China. Lescot had planned the Palace of the Louvre, Raphael had painted the Transfiguration, Michael Angelo had raised the dome of St. Peter's, Giacomo della Porta had ornamented the Vatican with mosaics, Copernicus had taught the true center of planetary motion, Dumoulin had introduced into French jurisprudence the principles of the Justinian code, Ariosto had published the "Orlando Furioso," Cervantes had written "Don Quixote," Spencer had dedicated his "Faery Queen," Shakespeare had composed his immortal dramas, Hooker had devised his "Ecclesiastical Polity," Cranmer had published his 42 Articles, John Calvin had dedicated to Francis I. his celebrated "Institutes," Luther had translated the Bible, Bacon had begun the "Instauracion of Philosophy," Bellarmine had systematized the Roman Catholic Theology, Henry IV. had signed the Edict of Nantes, Queen Elizabeth had defeated the Invincible Armada, and William the Silent had achieved the Independence of Holland.

That was an age when men felt the inspiration of a new life, and looked back on the middle ages with disgust and hatred, as a period which enslaved the human soul. What peculiarly marked that period, was the commencement of those marvellous discoveries in science which have enriched our times and added to the material blessings of the new civilization.

Tycho Brahe, Copernicus, Galileo, Kepler and Bacon, inaugurated the era which led to the progressive improvements in the physical condition of society, and to those scientific marvels which have followed in such quick succession and produced such astonishing changes, that we are fain to boast that we have entered upon the most fortunate and triumphant epoch in our world's history. The greatest discoverer of the 16th Century was Galileo, and the greatest reformer was Martin Luther.

The above is copied from Dr. Lord's Beacon Lights of History.

Sidelights From Halls of State's General Assembly

Springfield, Ill.—(AP)—Babel was reigned in the house of representatives, time and again this session. Repeatedly in the far corners members have yelled for order during debate.

"We sometimes surmise," Representative J. Q. Schnackenburg, Chicago told Speaker Scholes, "that somebody in this room is making a speech."

"We can't prove it, for we have only silhouetted gesture for basis of suspicion. Private arguments, going on in a dozen different places at the same time, make it impossible to hear the business at hand. I suggest that everyone not entitled to the floor shut up."

Thomas J. O'Grady represents the stockyards "district" of Chicago and he is authority for any statement to fort by Rep. Leo O'Neill Browne, Ottawa, to explain "downstate" interest in the March 8 elections. He asked Browne to tell how many members expected to take active part at the polls. Scholes relayed the question, but understood it to be one about adjournment.

"You see," Schnackenburg shouted, "the speaker himself can't hear what we're talking about!"

Joshing repartee has prevailed at other times.

For two months John P. Devine, a democrat from Dixon, joked about Rep. Aeneas Elrod's bill making it unlawful to transport a dog or any other live animal on the running board of an automobile.

Mrs. Elrod joined the laughter when John joked her bill the first time. Later, however, she failed to see anything funny and clamored for the floor. Heavy blows from the speaker's gavel ended the episode before she could tell about it.

the effect that he doesn't mean probably."

Addressing a banquet at the University of Illinois, O'Grady said: "My constituency probably has fewer students here than any other state. Nine out of every ten boys up there have to quit school and go to work. I had to, but none of us want to punish everybody else for our personal misfortune."

I don't say I'll vote to appropriate every cent a school may ask, but my people certainly want all centers of education to have the money they need.

During the war, when representatives from richer districts favored slashing the U. S. of I. appropriation, the stockyards stood squarely behind President Kinley. I'm here to say to you that whenever anyone tried to take away from the university the things to which it is entitled, the little Irishman from the stock yards will be right there to fight them."

Rep. Truman Snell, Carlinville, was selected in the absence of Michael Igou, floor leader, to represent the democrats at the university banquet. He eloquently quoted poetry on the fact that two women are democratic members of the house. Sen. Richard Barr, Joliet, accused him of finding women an easier and more delectable subject than democrats. Nevertheless, Snell persevered and won great applause when he championed a powerful radio broadcasting station for the university.

"All over this country," Snell said, "people are using the radio and I am ready to face the general assembly with demand that a great broadcasting station be erected here so that the good work done by this institution may be heard hourly in every home in the state."

"I'd like to see lectures, class activities, everything, available to the public simply by turning a dial."

SPORTS OF SORTS CHAMPION GOLFER OF WORLD TO BE 25 ON THURSDAY

Bobby Jones' Friends to Help Him Celebrate
His Birthday

(By O. B. Keeler)

Atlanta, March 15—(AP)—St. Patrick and Bobby Jones have the same birthday and this time March 17 marks the turning of the quarter century mark for the young man who is rather generally regarded as the world's greatest golfer.

At any rate, in the year before becoming 25, he achieved the distinction of being the first and only golfer rated officially as the champion of the world, by winning in the same season the open titles of Great Britain and the United States while at the top of American amateurs. The latter title he lost a short time later to George Von Elm.

Then, too, Bobby's first hole in one came just a few weeks ago, as it was his 24th year to a fitting close. It was Number 11, on the East Lake course of Atlanta, and was a half-shot with his Number four iron to the green 170 yards away. The ball hit five yards from the cup, bounced twice and rolled in.

Regarded as a "clod" for being older than he really is, because of his prominence in national and international golfing affairs for the last eleven years. It was at the age of fourteen years and six months that he entered his first national competition, the United States amateur championship at the Merion Cricket Club, Philadelphia, in 1916.

He qualified handsily and defeated Eben Byers, a former national champion, and Frank Dyer before losing a gruelling match to Robert A. Gardner, then champion, in the third round. Since then Bobby has been a national figure in golf.

Bobby started playing the game before he was six years old, at the East Lake course of the Atlantic Club, still his home club. His remarkable style was modeled on that of Stewart Maiden, still the professional instructor at that club.

Briefly, his career has to date included competition in twenty-one national championships, ten open and eleven amateur, sixteen in the United States, one in Canada and four in Great Britain.

Won All Big Titles.
He has won every major golfing title except the British amateur championship. He has won the United States open championship in 1923 and 1925; the United States amateur title twice, in 1924 and 1925, and the British open once, in 1926.

In the United States open event, his record is unapproached. In the last five years beginning with 1922, he has been either first or second in every tournament.

Bobby also has won innumerable lesser competitions, having been Southern amateur champion three times, up to 1922, when he won the title at East Lake with a aggregate score of ten under par for all the rounds he played, and since has not competed in that event.

During the war years of 1917 and 1918, he competed in matches for the Red Cross all over the country, playing in four ball matches with Perry Adair, his famous partner in golf, Miss Alexa Stirling, of Atlanta, and Miss Elaine Rosenthal, of Chicago. The four young people helped to raise something like $150,000 for the Red Cross fund.

Has Two Children.
Bobby was married in June, 1924, to Miss Mary Malone, of Atlanta, and now is the father of two children, Clara Malone Jones, quite two years, and Robert Tyre Jones III, aged not quite four months.

The open champion, after being graduated as a mechanical engineer at the Georgia School of Technology, in 1922, went to Harvard for a B. S. degree and after a year in business went back to school to study law at Emory University, preparatory to entering his father's law firm at Atlanta. He is now in his first year at Emory and is rated the best student in the law department.

Bobby intends to play in two national tournaments this year; the national open championship, in June at Oakmont, near Pittsburgh, and the national amateur championship at Minneapolis. He has stated he would not make the trip to Britain in these championships.

"I've got to get ready for the game of life," says Bobby, and pursues his law studies at Emory.

Babe Takes $210,000

Babe Ruth appears little disappointed as he reaches his agreement in New York to play for the Yankees for the next three seasons at $70,000 a year. Watching him are Ed Barrow, secretary of the New York club, and (seated) Colonel Ruppert, owner of the Yankees, who induced the Bambino to forget his previous demand for a two-year contract at $100,000 per. After all, although it'll take him a season longer, the Babe'll get $10,000 more than he asked.

PITCHERS FORM FOUNDATION OF CLEVELAND TEAM

McAllister's Bunch to Play for One Run at a Time

BY BRYAN HELL

Lake Land, Fla., March 15—(AP)—Cleveland's old team under a new manager will not be a "rock 'em and sock 'em club." Jack McAllister thinks he has the best pitching staff in the league and will show his confidence in them by playing, for one run at a time. "If we get one run, the other fellow has to have two to beat us," is McAllister's reasoning.

If training camp tactics may be taken as a shadow of impending events, third basemen on clubs opposing the Indians will have some busy afternoons. The Indians can punt, and they put the ball down with neatness and dispatch daily in their training.

The pitchers form the foundation of the club. Eight have been brought over from last season and one added. Every one is six feet tall.

Infield Remains Intact
The infield remains intact with a valuable addition in Lew Fonseca as utility and the catching staff is unaltered from last season.

The outfield has a silent spot where Tris Speaker has played for eleven. A re-arrangement of available outfielders will be sought to meet the situation, with a recruit slated to assume the extra role. Homer Summa will be shifted to center with a possibility that McNulty will play right against right hand pitchers and Eickhardt at the position, when left handers pitch. Jamieson has no position for left, George Gerken, on Decatur of the Three Eye seems certain to stick and Weber, a recruit from Dallas, Texas League, has a chance.

Captain George Burns, voted most valuable player in the American League last year, returns to first base.

Bits of News From Leaguers in Their Camps

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS.

The White Sox at Shreveport split into two teams. Neither side was able to score on the other.

Manager McCarthy of the Cubs at Catalina announced some more nine inning practice games this week in preparation for another mainland invasion next Saturday.

While the Boston Red Sox were taking things easy, after a long practice in a blazing New Orleans sun, the humiliated Boston Braves were busy at their St. Petersburg, Fla., camp today figuring how to recapture their prestige, which suffered an 8-0 defeat at the hands of the Giants yesterday.

Beaten 6-5 by the St. Louis Cardinals at Avon, Park the Philadelphia Athletics desired to even the contest by their own training camp in Fort Myers, Fla.

The Philadelphia Nationals meet the New York Giants at Bradenton, Fla., today.

Old timers played baseball at the Avon Park camp of the Cardinals. Grover Alexander, Ty Cobb, Zach Wheat, Eddie Collins and Jack Quinn, whose total ages aggregate nearly two hundred years were on their toes every minute of the game between the Cardinals and the Athletics.

The Yankigans trimmed the regulars at the Tarpon Springs camp of the Browns, making it three straight.

Manager Morarity regards the Detroit team as 25 per cent stronger at present than it was at this time last year.

Swedish Bowler Shows
How They Do It Abroad

Peoria, Ill., March 15—(AP)—R. Peterson of Chicago, showed pin hitters in the A. B. C. how they do it in Sweden last night when he took the lead in singles standing with a score of 701 pins.

That was the only change in leaders in yesterday's play. Holmes and Yyzral of Chicago holding the fort in the doubles and the Harrington Hupps of Minneapolis, the five man leadership.

Peterson is just visiting in Chicago on a trip from Sweden.

MT. MORRIS MEETS ROCKFORD IN OPEN- ING TOURNEY GAME

Sectional Tournament at Sterling to Begin
Thursday Night

The sectional tournament will be held at the Sterling township high school gym, the scene of the recent district tournament beginning Thursday evening at 8:15 o'clock. The schedule of games is as follows: Thursday evening—Game one, Mt. Morris vs. Rockford at 8:15; Game two, Moline vs. Elburn at 9:30.

Friday evening—Game three, Sterling vs. LaSalle at 8:15; Game four, winners of games one and two 9:30.

Saturday evening—Championship game, winner of games three and four, 8:30.

The officials will be Jesse E. Day, director of athletics of the Davenport high school, and A. V. Swedberg, director of athletics of Augustana college, both capable men.

A delegation of four men from Elburn, Sunday purchased 192 season tickets for the tournament.

The Elburn team is coached by Lindgren, former DeKalb high school athlete and captain of the DeKalb normal school team of 1923. He went to Elburn in 1924, won the DeKalb district tournament that year, and won third place in the sectional tournament. Won the 1925 district tournament, lost to DeKalb in 1926 and won again this year. During the season the team has played 23 games and has won 18. The team won the Little Eight conference for the fourth straight year.

Games lost this season were as follows: at Joliet 20 to 17; at Rockford 26 to 17; at DeKalb 35 to 17; at West Aurora 18 to 17. Elburn is practically a traveling team, and their record shows they do "some traveling" when it comes to winning games. They only have a small hall in which to play, consequently most of their games are away from home. In the past four years the team has won at least 50 per cent of its games with the Big Seven teams.

There are 46 students enrolled in the school, of which 22 are boys. There are 15 out for basketball. The first string men are as follows: Captain Perry Lakin, 5 ft. 10 in., 155 pound forward, four year man; Forrest Lakin, brother of Captain Lakin, 5 ft. 6 in., 140 pound forward, second year; Ellsworth Weston, center 6 ft. 4 in., 145 pounds, second year; William Chell, 6 ft., 150 pound guard, third year; George Pouley, 5 ft. 10 in., 155 pound forward, four year man; Forrester Lakin, guard, first year; Clyde Sharp, 6 ft., 160 pounds, utility man, first year.

The Mt. Morris high school has taken 125 tickets for the Thursday night session. It is expected that the other schools will have large followings and the gym will be packed to capacity each night.

Legislators to Plan Uniform Game Laws

Springfield, Ill., March 15—(AP)—A joint committee of the Illinois legislature will meet tomorrow to plan a campaign for uniform fish and game laws. The movement will be extended to other mid-west states.

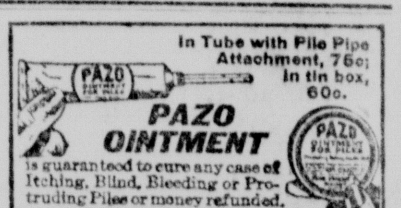

Conferences are to be arranged with the governors and legislatures of Iowa, Wisconsin and probably Michigan. The legislative session in Indianapolis has ended, and that of Missouri is near adjournment, but fish and game commissioners of those states will be asked to attend the conference.

It was pointed out a comprehensive system of fish and game preserves, and public hunting, fishing and recreational grounds is necessary if full value is to be obtained from the movement.

Preserves and feeding grounds in one state only would be of little value, it was asserted.

Nothing Slow About This Postman

Complaint that mail men are inclined to be slow sometimes is made, but Earl Kimball, mail man of Cascade, Idaho, won over 17 competitors in the American dog derby at Ashton, Idaho. He and his Irish setter, one of which is pictured with him above, mushed 25 miles in one hour and 57 minutes.

MORE CORN HELD BY FARMERS THAN USUAL IN MARCH

Less Oats and Potatoes Remain on Farms of State this Year

Springfield, O., March 15—(AP)—Illinois farmers' bins hold more corn, wheat and barley than average, according to the March report of the state and federal agricultural departments.

In terms of last session's production, farm reserves were reported at 49 percent for corn, 15 percent for wheat and 36 percent for oats.

The quality of corn and oats was reported below average. The report showed that farm labor is plentiful. It said ideal February weather enabled many farmers to catch up to some extent with field work, held up since August by wet weather in many central and northern counties.

The March survey of crop reserves always is considered important because it indicates the approximate size of farm crop supplies before new crop planting begins.

153,355,000 Bu. On Hand
The amount of corn remaining on Illinois farms from the 1926 crop was estimated at 153,355,000 bushels, compared with 209,058,000 bushels a year ago.

Illinois farm reserves of wheat is placed at 15 per cent or 6,155,000 bushels against 5,901,000 bushels last year and the average of 6,678,000 bushels. Sixty-eight percent or about the average percentage of the crop will move out of the counties where produced, the country's wheat reserve on farms was 130,444,000 bushels against 100,137,000 bushels last year and five year average of 125,059,000 bushels.

Farm reserve reports for oats vary sharply due to the uneven 1926 crop conditions, but are nearly up to average for the state as a whole. Quality is below average. Over half of the crop was damaged in the shock by the prolonged period of wet weather after harvest. In several localities in the northern half of the state, wet ago, 109,231,000 bushels in 1925 and the five-year average of 140,192,000 bushels.

Thirty-seven (37) percent of the 1926 crop has been or will be shipped out of counties where grown, compared with 40 per cent reported a year ago and the five year average of 37 per cent. The price ratio of corn to meat animals, also shortage of hay in most of the state has resulted in liberal feeding, due to the large carry-over of 1925 corn, reduced numbers of livestock, latest husking in years, and slow market movement, farm reserves are above average.

Only 73 percent of the 1926 crop was of merchantable quality against 87 percent of the 1925 crop and the past five year average of 84 per cent.

Wheat on Hand.
The country's carry-over of corn on farms is placed at 1,113,691,000 bushels or 42.1 per cent of the 1926 crop and compares with the reserve of 1,329,581,000 bushels a year ago.

Illinois farm reserves of wheat is placed at 15 per cent or 6,155,000 bushels against 5,901,000 bushels last year and the average of 6,678,000 bushels. Field conditions prevented the completion of threshing until the advent of favorable weather in February for drying out shocks. Illinois farm reserves of oats placed at 36 per cent of the 1926 crop or 44,656,000 bushels compared with 49,959,000 bushels last year and the past five year average of 48,141,000 bushels. About 38 per cent of the 1926 crop will move out of the counties where produced, against the average of 44 per cent. Oats reserves of the country were 423,957,000 bushels as compared with 571,248,000 bushels a year ago and the past five year average of 478,098,000 bushels.

AN EASY WAY TO LOSE FAT

The right way to lose fat is by combating the cause. By correcting a gland which largely controls nutrition. No abnormal exercise or diet is required. Simply take Marmola Prescription Tablets, four a day, until proper results are accomplished.

Marmola is the scientific method. It has been used for 19 years. The normal figures that it brings are seen in every circle now. And the use has grown, through those results, to very large proportions.
All druggists supply Marmola at $1 a box. Each box contains a pamphlet which explains the results you see and feel. Go get it now. Learn what others know about it. You will be delighted.

THE LIFE OF CHRIST

Saying, "Maid, arise," Jesus restored to life the little daughter of Jairus, a ruler of the synagogue, who had died, while Jairus came to beseech Jesus to heal her. (Luke VIII: 41-56)

Teaching, Preaching and Healing

Two blind men followed Jesus, crying, "Thou Son of David, have mercy on us," and Jesus restored their sight. (Matt. IX: 27-31)

Jesus went about the cities and villages, teaching, preaching and healing. (Matt. IX: 35)

"But when he saw the multitude he was moved with compassion on them, because they fainted, and were scattered abroad, as sheep having no shepherd," and he said, "The harvest truly is plentiful, but the laborers are few." (Matt. IX: 36-37)

OHIO NEWS NOTES

Ohio—Mrs. Maude Ryan received a message last Thursday announcing the arrival of twins, a boy and a girl, at the home of her brother, J. C. McCreary, and wife in Clinton, Iowa.

Mrs. F. E. Blanchard is visiting her daughter, Miss Violet, who is a teacher in the grade school at Chenoa.

Mrs. J. E. Dunn received the sad news Saturday evening of the death of her brother, Harry Holden of Chicago Heights. Mrs. Dunn left here Monday morning to attend the funeral.

John Fahn, one of our most highly respected business men, passed away Wednesday afternoon at the Perry Memorial hospital in Princeton after an illness of several weeks. Mr. Fahn and his son Edward have been local agents for the Illinois Oil Co. for the past few years. The deceased is survived by his widow, son Edward, a daughter Mrs. Helen Grossman, two little grandchildren, his aged father and many other relatives and friends to whom we extend sincere sympathy.

Funeral services, conducted by Rev. O. H. Wonn, were held Saturday afternoon at the First Lutheran church. Rev. Wonn was assisted by Rev. Wiederanders of Clarion township. Burial was in Union cemetery.

A great many local basketball fans went to Princeton Friday afternoon to the district tournament to see the Ohio boys trim the Buda team to the tune of 24 to 21. A heavy rain during the afternoon made the roads impassable and the players and fans were obliged to remain over night in Princeton. The following morning they drove to LaMotte on the paved road where they stored their cars and completed their homeward journey on the local freight train.

church enjoyed their annual dinner in the church parlors last Wednesday after which the "Thankful" boxes were opened and a splendid program was given.

Mr. and Mrs. George Baker of Geneseo spent the week end at the J. H. Nels home.

The Helper's Club met last Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Seth Anderson with Mrs. Geo. Anderson as assistant hostess.

Mrs. M. Libby spent last week at the home of her sister, Mrs. Andrew Hansen in Princeton.

John Neale of Poland, S. Dak., is visiting at the home of his son Aubrey Neale and family.

A business and social meeting of the Loyal Women's Club of the M. P. Sunday school was held in the church parlors Monday evening. The following officers were elected: Teachers—Mrs. F. B. Hanna, President—Mrs. Mabel Ruff, Vice President—Mrs. Maude Blanchard, Sec.-Treas.—Mrs. Harry Peterson. Contests of various kinds furnished amusement and a dainty luncheon was served.

The Ladies Aid Society of the First Lutheran church met last Wednesday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Henry Kramer, with Mrs. O. H. Wonn as assistant hostess.

ROCHELLE NEWS

Rochelle—Rev. Thomas, of Ashton, formerly of Wales, will address a joint meeting of The American Legion and Legion Auxiliary on "Baseball Game of Life: the Pinch Hitter." The meetings of the respective organizations will be held at 8 o'clock followed by the joint meeting and address at 9 o'clock. Legionnaires are urged to attend the meeting and bring a new member. The pet continues to grow in membership and has been congratulated by National Commander Howard P. Savage and State Commander Ferris C. Watkins.

The festivities of 1927 promise to eclipse all former Elk entertainments beginning Wednesday, April 26th, following Easter Sunday. Woodman hall is to be decorated for the big indoor event and many new features, new musical numbers and an attractive program throughout is being planned by the committee.

Grieve & Walker, well known local women outfitters, are to conduct their spring style show next Thursday and Friday, March 17th and 18th at the Majestic. The latest creation in women's and children's wear and fashions will be displayed on living models. The show is in charge of Miss Irene Coleman. O'Leary dance orchestra will furnish music and a special feature moving picture will be shown.

Patrol No. 13, of Troop 61, of Black Hawk Council of Boy Scouts, of Rochelle, has a most ingenious home, "Eagle's Nest," a tree dwelling fashioned of boards, building paper, with a tin roof and perched high and dry fifteen feet from the ground in an immense willow tree on a back lot on the William Lux property on North Seventh street. Three scouts, Walter Kron, Adelbert Lux and Jack Turkington, architect and carpenter, erected the cabin laboring six days and nights completing it on the seventh day. The total cost was $130. Candle light furnished the method of illumination for the night trick. The dimensions of the hut are 8x19 and 6 feet high with a window to the south. It has conveniences for cooking, rugs on the floor, a table, two chairs, a bench which will seat five, with shelves for cooking utensils and canned goods. A small laundry stove furnishes warmth and heat for cooking purposes. Entrance to the rendezvous is gained by climbing the tree and climbing through a trap door in the floor. Candles furnish light for patrol meetings and study purposes. The boys find their home to be waterproof, safe and exclusive. Intruders are warned off by tossing hot water on them. Two members were in the cabin during the season's biggest wind and snow storm, and they report that aside from a little swaying that the shelter was very cozy and seemed as though it was on the ground. Needless to say the cabin is popular. The boys are there most of their leisure time.

Washington, March 14—(AP)—The great body of American students are dry, but they are often misrepresented "by the misconception of the few" in the opinion of Harry S. Warner, educational secretary of the Intercollegiate Prohibition Association.

The national student council of the association has just concluded a meeting here at which a four years plan to encourage discussion and study of the whole prohibition subject was decided upon.

C. I. Carpenter, of Bucknell University was elected president of the council and W. H. Green of Randolph-Macon College, Ashland, Va., secretary.

FIGHT FAKE SCHOOLS.

Chicago—The American Association of Engineers, declaring that "the country is over-run with misleading correspondence schools," is backing a drastic law to be submitted to Congress to eliminate frauds and provide a basis for the legitimate.

Recent surveys indicated correspondence schools do an annual business of $70,000,000, much of which is spent for training that is of no value.

WHAT HAS GONE BEFORE

GARRETT FOLSOM is stabbed to death while swimming at Ocean Town, N. J. It is believed that the death weapon was a pichan, an Oriental knife, and that it was purchased on the boardwalk.

Folsom's hatching companions had been ROGER NEVILLE, a business partner; MRS. HELEN HARNARY and CARMELITA VALDON.

ANASTASIA FOLSOM, eccentric and masterful sister of the dead man, takes command, and it is established that one CROYDON SEARS is a fanatical of serious weapons. Sears admits buying two knives but not the pichan.

A nauticist engages TITUS RIGGS, an architect, to work on the case. DAN PELTON, Folsom's nephew, arrives and is puzzled by the curious French dolls in his uncle's rooms.

Croydon Sears sends for ELEANOR STONE, famous detective. He tells him Folsom had been blackmailing him and he had lied to the inquest but was innocent. Stone meets others of the circle, including NED BARRON and his wife, MADELINE, who puzzles him.

Stone comes upon Carmelita Valdon, whose suspicious actions have involved her, and determines to question her.

NOW GO ON WITH THE STORY CHAPTER XLIV "NOT going in this morning?" Stone said, after Pelton, who was with her, had made introductions.

"Not until later," Carmelita Valdon told him. "About noon, I think, today."

"Then you've time for a chair ride with me. Do take pity on my loneliness and come for a ride. The chairs fascinate me and I hate to go alone."

It was not the habit of Carmelita Valdon to turn down anything in the shape of attention from any presentable man. And Fleming Stone was decidedly presentable.

So Carmelita smiled on him and declared she'd love to go.

"See you when I come back, Dan," she said gaily to Pelton, who watched the pair depart, uncertain whether he wanted Stone to interview her or not.

"Be good to her," he called out, as a warning to the detective, who answered with a smile and a nod, and then glanced at Carmelita.

"I fancy everybody is good to you," he said in his gentle voice, so full of subtle flattery and yet impersonal, too.

"Yes," she said slowly, "everybody but Fate."

"And Fate is cruel?"

They were slowly rolling along the boardwalk, the sun not yet high enough to be unpleasantly warm, the sea breeze coming in crisp and cool and the stolid, half-asleep negro pushing them utterly oblivious, if indeed he could hear their conversation.

"Yes, Mr. Stone," and Carmelita turned a grave countenance to his own. "Fate is nearly always cruel to a woman."

"Oh, what a sweeping assertion! And what an untrue one! Surely you don't mean that—you, with the world at your feet—with all the gifts nature can bestow—"

"Never mind that sort of talk," Stone said quietly.

She gave him a startled glance. "I hate to put it so baldly," she said, as if thinking this over, "but, well, I am not really sorry. Or, to come nearer the truth, I'm glad only for one reason. Otherwise I wish the man were still alive."

"You're glad he's dead because that gave you opportunity to re-say—nature's gifts, looks, charm, power, all the feminine arts, who oftenest get cruel blows from Fate, that are none the less terrible because unknown to the world at large."

Without appearing to do so, Stone scrutinized her keenly. Either this woman was Miss Folsom had painted her, and she was deliberately setting out to fascinate him, or Pelton was right and she was troubled, but not by reason of a guilty conscience regarding Folsom's murder.

"I think, Mrs. Valdon," he said gently, "it would be better if we talked plainly. You know, I dare say, that I am down here to investigate the death of Garrett Folsom. There are reasons why I should ask you some questions and I have chosen this way to do it, thinking it would be the least annoying to you."

Carmelita thanked him with one of her best smiles. "You are good," she said, with a ring of sincerity in her tone. "Let us talk plainly then. In the first place, I did not kill Mr. Folsom."

"But you are glad he is dead," Stone said quietly.

"I hate to put it so baldly," she said, as if thinking this over, "but, well, I am not really sorry. Or, to come nearer the truth, I'm glad only for one reason. Otherwise I wish the man were still alive."

Flashes of Life

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

New York—If you wish to marry girls, the chances are better in the country. Ten per cent more women between the ages of 20 and 44 living in rural districts marry than those living in cities, it is shown by a survey. The principal reason is high rent.

New York—Having been a butler in the same family for 20 years, Frederick Bucher is $100,000 richer. He was bequeathed that sum by Mrs. Josephine W. Taylor, widow of Henry A. Taylor, financier. "One doesn't retire when there are three children," he will continue at work. Six years ago Mr. Taylor left him $15,000.

Sydney—It seems well for anybody contemplating a tour of Cannibal Isles to learn the Charleston: Palmer Kent, composer, is back from a visit to Epi Island in the Hebrides, with a story that Aborigines, about to attack at first were diverted by his dancing, and then so pleased by his instruction that they lavished him with presents.

Grandmother Knew

there was nothing so good for congestion and colds as mustard. But the old-fashioned mustard plaster burned and blistered.

Musterole gives the relief and help that mustard plasters gave, without the plaster and without the blister.

It is a clean, white ointment, made with oil of mustard. Gently rub it in. See how quickly the pain disappears.

Try Musterole for sore throat, bronchitis, tonsillitis, croup, stiff neck, asthma, neuralgia, headache, congestion, pleurisy, rheumatism, lumbago, pains and aches of the back or joints, sprains, sore muscles, bruises, chilblains, frosted feet, colds of the chest (it may prevent pneumonia).

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

You Can Bring Back Color and Lustre With Sage Tea and Sulphur

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally, so evenly. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. At little cost you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair, taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears, and after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.

After the "Flu" is over —you need a Tonic

Help Is Needed to Restore Your Wasted Strength and Energy.

"Flu" leaves the body weakened and rundown. In such case, a tonic is clearly indicated. Restore the appetite and rid yourself of that let-down feeling.

"Flu" is a very enervating disease. It leaves its victims so weak and debilitated that there is as much danger from the after-effects as from the disease itself. In other words, after an attack of the "flu," you need a selective tonic to rebuild the system so that you may have your old-time strength and energy restored.

S.S.S. is unequalled for restoring strength and vitality.

You owe it to yourself and family to give S.S.S. a trial. It helps Nature build up red blood corpuscles. It improves the processes by which the body is nourished. It is time-tried and reliable. S.S.S. is made from the roots of fresh herbs and plants, and is prepared in a scientific way in a modern laboratory.

S.S.S. is sold at all good drug stores in two sizes. The larger size is more economical.
